

law issue against any person committing an offence, and to prosecute such person up to final judgment.

22. Any Magistrate may, as occasion requires, direct the conduct of all assemblies and processions on the public roads, or in the public streets or thoroughfares, and prescribe the routes by which, and the times at which, such processions may pass. They may also regulate the use of music in the streets on the occasion of festivals and ceremonies.

23. It shall be the duty of the police to keep order on the public roads, and in the public streets, thoroughfares, ghauts, and landing-places, and at all other places of public resort, and to prevent obstructions on the occasions of assemblies and processions on the public roads and in the public streets, or in the neighbourhood of places of worship, during the time of public worship, and in any case when any road, street, thoroughfare, ghaut, or landing-place may be thronged, or may be liable to be obstructed.

24. Every person opposing or not obeying the orders issued under the last two preceding rules, or violating the conditions of any license granted by any Magistrate for the use of music, or for the conduct of assemblies and processions, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine not exceeding Rupees two hundred. The provisions of Section 307 of Act X. of 1872 shall be followed in levying all fines imposed under this rule, and, in default of payment, imprisonment may be adjudged in accordance with the provisions of Section 67 of the Indian Penal Code.

25. Every police officer or Constable who shall be guilty of any violation of duty or wilful breach or neglect of any rule or regulation, or lawful order made by competent authority, or who shall withdraw from the duties of his office without permission, or without having given previous notice for the period of two months; or who shall engage without authority in any employment other than his police duty; or who shall be guilty of cowardice; or who shall offer unwarrantable personal violence to any person in his custody, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding three months' pay, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labor, for a period not exceeding three months, or to both.

26. The regular police force shall be located in buildings to be called thannahs. These thannahs shall be erected in some central position in each talook of a district, so that, if possible, no part of the talook may be more than six or eight miles distant. In the case of large talooks where this is impossible, subordinate thannahs, to be called out-posts, may be erected under the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner.

27. The force of regular police to be allotted to each thannah and talook shall not exceed one Inspector, one Sub-Inspector, two Jemadars, and twenty Constables. But it shall be open to District Magistrates, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, to make from time to time such distribution of the allotted police force throughout the several talooks of their districts as may be found necessary to meet local requirements.

28. Each police station shall be visited by the Magistrate of the District at least twice in the course of each year, and the results of such inspections shall be reported to the Judicial Commissioner in the form already prescribed.

29. It shall be lawful for the Judicial Commissioner, with the sanction of the Local Government, to be notified by proclamation in the Government Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government shall direct, to employ any police force in excess of the ordinary fixed complement to be quartered in any part of the general police district which shall be found to be in a disturbed or dangerous state, or in any part of the general police district in which, from the conduct of the inhabitants, he may deem it expedient to increase the number of police. The inhabitants of the part of the country described in the notification shall be charged with the cost of such additional police force, and the Magistrate of the District, after enquiry if necessary, shall assess the proportion in which the amount is to be paid by the inhabitants according to his judgment of their respective means.

30. Whenever, owing to the frequent occurrence of highway robberies or dacoities in any particular part of a district, the District Magistrate is of opinion that an extra police force should be located in that quarter, he should report all the circumstances for the orders of the Judicial Commissioner. When proposing the appointment of extra police under this rule, the District Magistrate should state the number of dacoities or robberies which have occurred in or near that part of the district during the preceding twelve months, the direction the dacoits or robbers took after completion of crime, the village where clue in each case was lost by the police, the general character of the inhabitants, their unwillingness to assist the police, &c.

31. All monies payable under the preceding rules on account of any additional police force employed as therein directed, shall be recoverable under the warrant of a Magistrate by distress and sale of the goods of the defaulter within the district of such Magistrate, or by suit in any competent court, and the monies paid on this account or so recovered shall be applied to the maintenance of the police force under such orders as the Local Government shall pass.

32. Information of crime and of all events will be communicated to officers in charge of thannahs by the village police by aggrieved parties, or casual informants, and by Constables deputed to patrol roads. It will be no part of the duty of Constables to patrol villages or other inhabited places to seek for information, and thus to interfere with the duties and responsibilities of the village police.

33. When a murder, dacoity or robbery is reported, it shall be the duty of the senior officer in charge of the thannah to circulate immediate information of the occurrence to the surrounding thannahs in order to secure the apprehension of the offenders, and, on receipt of reports of such and other non-bailable offences, to repair to the spot without loss of time in person to take up the enquiry, or to depute some other officer of police to do so with the necessary complement of Constables.

34. When making enquiries on the occasion of any robbery, burglary, theft, or other non-bailable offence, police officers shall invariably ascertain and report on the conduct of the police patel and village watchmen, and whether they were present at their posts when the offence was perpetrated; if not, the cause of their absence, and whether there may be reason to believe that they were themselves concerned in, or connived at, the commission of the crime.

35. In the event of any neglect or suspicion of criminality attaching to any police patel or village watchman, the police officer shall either send him to the Magistrate having jurisdiction, with a separate report of the grounds of the charge exhibited against him and evidence to establish the same, or shall forward a report in the first instance, and wait the instructions of the Magistrate as the nature of the alleged offence may dictate.

36. It shall also be the duty of the officers of the regular police force to report all neglect or delay in reporting crime and any other dereliction of duty on the part of the village police which may be detected by themselves, or brought to their notice by police patels—(vide Rule 9 for village police)—for the orders of the Magistrate having jurisdiction. All action taken by Magistrates under this and the preceding rule shall be immediately reported for the information of the Magistrate of the District.

37. An officer of police shall always remain on duty at the thannah to receive complaints, reports, &c. Thus, of the force attached to each thannah, three officers will be available for holding investigations and for other out-door duty. As a general rule no investigation calling for the presence of the police shall be made over to a Constable or other than an officer of police. The senior officer at any time present at a thannah shall be "the officer in charge of the station."

38. It shall be the duty of the officers of police to prosecute all criminal cases sent up by them before the courts of all magisterial officers when these duties cannot be undertaken by any of the officers attached to the courts, or by the public prosecutors.

39. It shall be the duty of Inspectors to maintain unreserved and confidential communication with the talook Magistrates on all subjects affecting the peace and well-being of the talook under their magisterial charge, to make themselves thoroughly acquainted with the localities and inhabitants of their talooks, and when not actually engaged in the investigation of any particularly heinous crime (which should always be taken up by Inspectors), or in prosecuting any such case before the Magistrates, to visit periodically the several villages in their talooks, in order to satisfy themselves that the village police are doing their duty, and that crimes are not concealed. Each village in a talook should be thus visited in rotation at least once in every week.

40. Each Inspector shall keep a diary. In this diary Inspectors shall enter the work on which they are engaged, the police stations or villages visited by them, the information conveyed to them, and any orders issued to the organized or village police subordinate to them. Each evening a copy of all the entries made in this diary during the previous twenty-four hours shall be forwarded by every Inspector to the District Magistrate.

41. At each thannah a diary shall be kept in the form No. 2 in the appendix to these rules, called the station diary, which shall be ordinarily written up by the Sub-Inspector, or one of the Jemadars. In this diary daily and brief records of the following matters shall be entered:

- (1) the duties to be performed by, and the distribution of duty amongst, the police;
- (2) the reports of duties performed by the police; and
- (3) reports of crimes or other occurrences, of which information has been received as required by Section 139 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

42. A copy of all the entries made in this diary shall be daily sent to the Magistrate of the District, and a copy of such portions of the diary which have reference to cognizable crimes reported shall be sent daily, under Section 114 of Act X. of 1872, to the Amildar or other Magistrate having jurisdiction in the form No. 3 in the appendix to these rules. These reports shall be called "first information reports," and shall be numbered consecutively for each month at each thannah. The fact that copies have been sent as required above, shall be noted at the foot of the daily entries each day, and this note should be signed daily by the officer in charge of the station.

43. Every officer of police leaving or deputed from the thannah to hold a local enquiry shall keep a special diary in accordance with the provisions of Section 126 of Act X. of 1872. In this diary the following matters shall be succinctly entered: the purport of the report received calling for enquiry, the time he left the thannah, the distance to be travelled, the time of arrival at the scene of occurrence, the time he commenced the enquiry, the places visited or examined by him, the measures taken by him from time to time, the process by which he discovered facts or circumstances bearing on the case, the facts or circumstances so discovered, and the time when the local investigation was completed.

44. The officer holding the enquiry shall forward, day by day, a copy of such diary to the District Magistrate for his information and for such orders as may be called for. Each case or crime reported shall have a separate number. The progress reports of the case shall bear the same number, but be distinguished as 1st, 2nd, or 3rd reports, and so on, until the investigation is completed, when the number shall be No. * and final report.

45. In cases of a very serious nature, such as murder, dacoity, highway robbery, &c., a copy of the first intimation of the crime received by the District Magistrate, as provided for in Rule 42, and of all subsequent special diaries submitted to the District Magistrate as provided for in Rule 44, shall be forwarded day by day, as received by District Magistrates, for the information of the Judicial Commissioner, together with a copy of all or any orders which may have been passed by the District Magistrate on such diaries. When the reports and diaries are not in English, an English translation of them must be submitted to the Judicial Commissioner.

46. A police officer in charge of a thannah or holding an investigation shall send to the Magistrate having jurisdiction the final report of every charge made to him of a cognizable offence in either of the forms A, B, or C in the appendix to these rules. These final reports shall be numbered with reference to the order in which they have been made during the year, that is, the first charge accepted in any year shall be entered as No. 1, and so on, consecutively, until the entry of the last charge accepted during that year which closes the series.

47. The counterfoil of the forms A, B, and C shall contain a précis of all the particulars noted in the sheet, and shall be filed among the books of the station.

48. The charges which shall be entered in form A are, firstly, all cases cognizable by the police in which particular persons have been charged, in which arrests have been made, and the accused sent before a Magistrate; secondly, all such cases which the police believe to be true, and in which the offenders have evaded arrest and absconded after arrest.

49. In form B shall be entered those charges which are cognizable by the police and in which some particular person is charged with having been concerned, but which the officer holding the enquiry does not consider true or not sufficiently proved to warrant his sending the accused before a Magistrate, whether the accused has been arrested and released on bail or recognizance, or whether no arrest has taken place; also, those charges which are refused either because it shall appear to the officer in charge of the station that there is not sufficient grounds for entering on an enquiry, or that the immediate apprehension of the accused is not necessary for the ends of justice.

50. In form C the final report shall be submitted of all cases reported to the police which are cognizable, and in which no particular person is charged by the complainant with having committed the offence, or the police fail after enquiry to discover the perpetrators.

51. If, after sending in the final report of a case in B or C form, the police obtain a clue to the parties who committed the offence, or further evidence, their having sent in the "final report" shall not prevent their immediately proceeding to make a fresh enquiry, and if on the second enquiry the accused is sent up for trial, A form will have to be submitted, but if no one is arrested, no further report in either B or C form need be made.

52. Police officers shall be required to state clearly and fully their reasons in each case for submitting their final reports in B or C form. If they are of opinion that any case so reported is false, they shall give a brief abstract of the evidence of each witness by whom the charge was proved to be false, also of all other persons examined who stated anything whatever in support of the charge, and the reasons in full for considering the charge to be false.

53. When a Magistrate directs an enquiry to be made by the police under Section 110 of Act X. of 1872, regarding a case which is not cognizable by the police, the police officer will proceed in the same manner as he would with a cognizable case, except in the two following particulars:

- (1) he shall not send in a first information report, and
- (2) he shall not arrest the accused without a warrant.

After investigation, the police officer will submit a report of the case to the Magistrate ordering the enquiry. If, on the receipt of the report, the Magistrate issues a summons or warrant against the accused, the police officer will submit the case in form A as if it were a cognizable case; but if the Magistrate does not issue a warrant or summons, the case will be submitted in either B or C form, according as a charge is or is not made out against any one by name.

54. The Magistrate having jurisdiction in each talook shall keep a general register of cases in the form No. 4 in the appendix to these rules.

* The last number of the report in the case.

55. An officer of the court selected for the purpose shall be held responsible for writing up this register and for carrying out the following directions:—The details of all first information reports as received shall be entered by this officer in columns 1 to 8 of the register. He shall then submit the register, together with the first reports, to the Magistrate and obtain his initials in column 9. The purport of any orders that the Magistrate may pass shall also be entered by the Magistrate with his own hand in the same column. As soon as the final report is sent, in either A, B, or C form, the officer of the court will fill in columns 10 to 14, and shall again submit the register, together with the final reports, to the Magistrate. If any prisoners are sent in, the Magistrate will, in column 15, pass orders with his own hand for the trial of the case, or if the case is reported in either B or C form, he will, in column 15, record what further steps he wishes the police to take. The final orders in each case shall similarly be entered by the Magistrate with his own hand in column 16. All orders passed and recorded by the Magistrate in columns 9, 15, and 16, shall be immediately communicated to the police by the responsible officer of the court for their information and guidance, and to enable them to fill in the counterfoils of the forms A, B, and C in the station books.

56. As regards all cases reported in forms B and C, the Magistrate must decide whether they are true or false. If he is unable to come to a decision whether they are true or not from the reports submitted by the police, he may send for the complainants, informants or witnesses, and hear their story from themselves. If he considers that the offence has been committed, it will rest with him to say under what section it is to be entered in his quarterly return of crime, as an undetected crime ascertained to have been committed. If he considers that the offence has not been committed, he shall enter the case as a false one in his general register of cases, and as not to be included in his quarterly crime return No. 2.

57. As soon as final orders are passed in any case, the original forms A, B, or C, with the final orders entered or endorsed on them, shall be forwarded by the Magistrate having jurisdiction to the Magistrate of the District, to enable the Magistrate of the District, who has all the special diaries before him, to check the proceedings of the police and of the subordinate Magistrates. After perusal, the original forms shall be returned together with the orders passed by the District Magistrate to be filed with the records of the case.

58. The only departmental return required from the police will be the monthly return of crime. This return shall be drawn up in the form No. 5 appended, and shall be submitted by the Inspector of each thannah to the Talook Magistrate having jurisdiction on or before the third of each month following that to which the return relates. After testing the correctness of the entries the Talook Magistrate shall countersign the return and forward it to the Magistrate of the District, with such comments and remarks as may be called for, on or before the seventh of the month. The District Magistrate shall record his resolution on each return for communication to the police and Talook Magistracy, and shall transmit a copy of these resolutions, together with an amalgamated return for the whole District, in the same form, for the information of the Judicial Commissioner on or before the fifteenth of the month.

59. A foot note should be given in the monthly returns showing the total number of non-cognizable cases investigated by the police during the month under orders of a Magistrate. Only those cases which are investigated and finally reported on during the month shall be entered. Any case under enquiry on the last day of the month and not finally reported on, shall be entered in the reports of the following month. No case shall be entered as false in the monthly returns, unless the Magistrate has recorded that he agrees with the police that such case is false.

60. The quarterly police return of crime and the annual police returns shall be drawn up in the forms already prescribed by Government for the Bangalore police. These returns shall be drawn up and submitted by the Talook Magistrates to the Magistrate of the District. The rules above given as to procedure and dates of despatch shall apply equally to the quarterly returns. All cases reported to the police and not pronounced false by the Magistrate, are to be entered in the quarterly police return as well as in the Magistrate's judicial quarterly return No. 2.

61. The first information of unnatural deaths reported shall be submitted to the nearest Magistrate, under Section 133 of Act X. of 1872, in the form No. 6 appended to these rules, the counterfoil remaining as a record in the police station. In the column "how caused," the actual words as given by the informer should, as far as possible, be adhered to. In holding inquests and in transmitting the body for medical examination when there is suspicion of foul play, and medical evidence is necessary, the police shall be guided by the separate rules in force on the subject.

62. After despatching this first information report, it shall be the duty of the senior officer present at the station to proceed instantly to the spot so as to see the body and hold the inquest. If, on the face of the information received, any grounds for suspicion appear, immediate information should also be conveyed to the Inspector, so as to secure his attendance also on the spot.

63. On the termination of the inquest, a duplicate copy of the first information report shall be forwarded to the Magistrate, together with a full report of the proceedings held, as required by Section 133 of Act X. of 1872.

64. At each thannah or police station the following books and registers shall be kept:

65. All persons imprisoned for offences noted in the margin, residents of Mysore, who may be discharged from the district or central jail, will be forwarded through the agency of the police to the Magistrates of their respective districts on the first day of the month in which their sentences may expire. As soon as practicable after the arrival of such prisoners at head quarters, the District Magistrate will cause them to be released in the several villages to which they may belong in the presence of the police patel. Their names will then be entered in the Register of persons released from jail on expiry of sentence, form appendix No. 15, where their names will remain until it has been satisfactorily shown that police surveillance is no longer required. When any person has shewn by his conduct that he is reclaimed and is gaining his livelihood in an honest manner, report will be made by the police to the Magistrate of the District and his name erased from the register.

66. To assist the District Magistrate in the supervision and administration of the police, and generally in carrying out the requirements of these rules, a Head Inspector shall be appointed in each district. It will be the duty of the Head Inspector, with the aid of the Magistrate's present establishment, to receive and submit before the District Magistrate all reports, &c., sent in by the police and subordinate Magistrates relating to the police, and to communicate all orders passed on such matters by the District Magistrate. The Head Inspector shall also aid and superintend the police in investigating any particular crime, or class of crimes, when the District Magistrate, owing to the pressure of other duties, is unable to do so himself.

67. For the purpose of securing uniformity of procedure, Magistrates of Districts shall not issue any subsidiary rules for the guidance of the police, nor shall they call for any returns or prescribe any registers for use other than those provided for in these rules without the special approval and sanction of the Judicial Commissioner.

68. The Judicial Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, cancel, alter, or add to all or any of these rules.

"MAHARAJA, RAJAS, and SIRDARS,—I bid you heartily welcome to this the first Durbar that I have held since my arrival in India.

"You have recently had to lament the untimely death of the EARL OF MAYO. A faithful servant of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN has been taken away in the midst of his career of usefulness. In him, India lost a wise ruler, and you, in common with the other Princes and Chiefs of this land, have been deprived of a friend who was sincerely attached to you, and whose interest in your welfare has been felt by all of you who have ever had the good fortune to come under his genial influence.

"It is the first duty of a good ruler to maintain order in his dominions, and I am glad to embrace this opportunity of recognizing the promptitude with which the Princes of the Cis-Sutlej States acted on the occasion of the disturbances which took place at the beginning of this year at Malodh and Maler Kotla.

"It has given me great pleasure to have concluded arrangements with the Maharaja of Puttialla and the Rajas of Jheend and Nabha for the extension of the Sirhind Canal through their territories, and I hail this proceeding on the part of the Raja of Nabha as an auspicious commencement of his rule.

"I have come to this country at the command of THE QUEEN, determined faithfully to carry out the policy expressed in HER MAJESTY'S Most Gracious Proclamation to the Princes and people of India.

"The Princely Houses of which you are the worthy Representatives have been distinguished for their loyalty to HER MAJESTY and their attachment to the British Government.

"As HER MAJESTY'S Representative, it will be my duty to maintain to the utmost of my power your dignity and independence, and in all your plans for the advancement of the moral and material prosperity of the people, you may rely upon receiving my cordial advice and assistance."

RESOLUTION.—The failure of the Saugor barracks is the most signal instance of the waste of public money which has taken place of late years in the construction of barracks.

2. The Saugor barracks have cost £166,000; and, after a careful enquiry, a competent Committee, to whom the thanks of the Government are due for the patience and impartiality with which they have conducted their investigations, have recommended that they shall be altogether abandoned.

3. It is necessary for the Government to consider the amount of blame which should be attached to those who have been concerned in this disastrous transaction.

4. The Executive Engineer in charge of the works during the greater part of the four and-a-half years which were occupied in the construction of the barracks was Captain Faber, R. E. He was succeeded by Mr. Johnstone and Mr. Fitzjames. The Superintending Engineers of the Jubbulpore Circle were Lieutenant-Colonel Allen, S. C., from the commencement of the works till April 1869, Mr. Heyman having officiated for two months in 1868; Mr. C. Campbell, C. E., from April 1869 till April 1870, succeeded by Colonel Hugh Rose and Colonel Sir E. Leeds. The Chief Engineers of the Central Provinces were Colonel Maxwell, R. A., to March 1867, Colonel Pollard, R. E., from that date till June 1869, and subsequently Mr. T. W. Armstrong, C. E.

5. The officers who have been blamed by the Committee were furnished with copies of the report, and invited to submit any explanation with respect to their conduct which they might desire to offer. Those explanations have now been received. It is obvious that sufficient care was not taken to secure proper executive supervision of the construction of the barracks, and that Lieutenant-Colonel Allen's antecedents were not such as to justify his appointment to the post of Superintendent of Works at Jubbulpore. If a competent officer had filled that position, it is probable that the defects in the construction of the barracks would have been remedied before they had become irretrievable. It is important that the attention of those who are responsible for appointments and promotions should be called to the necessity of looking solely to the public interests, and not to the rank, position, or pecuniary emoluments of the officers from whom they have to make their selections.

6. The Executive Engineer in charge, Captain Faber, R. E., was clearly unfit for the duties which he had to perform.

With every allowance for the absence of proper superintendence of his work by superior officers, and for his having been charged with duties too extensive to have been satisfactorily performed by one officer, the greatest amount of blame must be laid to the charge of Captain Faber of all the officers who were concerned with the works.

He should be placed at the disposal of the Commander-in-Chief.

7. Lieutenant-Colonel Allen, the Superintending Engineer, who should have controlled and assisted Captain Faber during the most important part of the period under review, is dead, and the Government of India is, therefore relieved from the duty of expressing any opinion of his conduct.

8. Mr. Campbell, C. E., succeeded Lieutenant-Colonel Allen as Superintending Engineer, and held that office from April 1869 to April 1870, during part of which time the works were in progress.

9. Mr. Campbell made some improvement in method of construction, and issued certain useful specifications as to the manner in which works should be carried out within his circle; but the report which he made of the barracks at Saugor in April 1869 is characterized by the Committee as "inaccurate and calculated to mislead." Mr. Campbell's explanation does not satisfactorily meet this charge, inasmuch as his report fails to give an accurate impression of the condition of the works when Mr. Campbell inspected them, and, in fact, he did not discover, during his tenure of office, the real extent of the defects which subsequently appeared.

10. Mr. Campbell has done good service as Executive Engineer at Delhi, and has received the thanks of Government for his project for the Holkar State Railway. At the end of last year he was selected for the charge of the Indus Valley Railway as Engineer-in-Chief, with the rank of Superintending Engineer, 1st Grade. In consideration of his good service since the neglect which he showed as Superintending Engineer of the Jubbulpore Circle, it will be sufficient that he should be reduced for one year from the 1st to the 2nd Grade of Superintending Engineer as a mark of the displeasure of Government.

11. The conduct of the Chief Engineers of the Central Provinces who held office during the construction of the Saugor barracks will next be considered.

12. It must be borne in mind that the duties of a Chief Engineer, who has also Secretariat work to perform, prevent him from exercising a minute supervision over the works in his district. He is, however, bound to give such a general supervision as should ensure proper arrangements being made for carrying out the works for which he is generally responsible; and if he has good reason to suppose that any of such works are not being carried out in a satisfactory manner, it is his duty to give such personal attention to those works as will satisfy him that proper arrangements have been made.

13. Colonel Maxwell was Chief Engineer for a year and-a-quarter, during which time four of the barracks were commenced, and one of them was nearly completed. Colonel Maxwell did not visit the works, and he failed to take the necessary steps to secure a proper organization for their construction. When he was on the point of leaving the district, he became aware that Colonel Allen, the Superintending Engineer, entertained unsound views as regards rubble-work, and he wrote a memorandum on the subject, which he left with his successor. Colonel Maxwell has retired from the service.

14. Colonel Pollard became Chief Engineer in April 1867. He transmitted to Lieutenant-Colonel Allen the memorandum written by Colonel Maxwell, from which he should have been led to doubt the judgment of Lieutenant-Colonel Allen in respect to rubble-work. He inspected the Saugor barracks in November 1867, and states that he found considerable fault with the works, and that he gave orders and wrote a memorandum for the purpose of remedying the defects which he considered to exist. This memorandum was on record in Colonel Pollard's office, but it does not appear ever to have reached Captain Faber.

15. It is evident, moreover, from Colonel Pollard having ordered Captain Faber to leave his work on the barracks immediately after the inspection, in order to take up a road survey, from Captain Faber's promotion in the spring of 1868, and from the whole tenor of the correspondence with respect to the extension of the works at that time, that the result of Colonel Pollard's inspection was not in any degree calculated to give an impression to Captain Faber that serious fault was found with the works.

See Captain Faber's letters of 31st July 1872 and 11th September 1872, Appendix III. to Committee's Report, &c.

16. Although Colonel Pollard might naturally have failed to detect the full extent of the defects in the barracks,—the defects which he admits that he saw should have led him to pay particular attention to the works,—Colonel Pollard endeavours to show that he took sufficient steps to remedy the defects, but he did not inspect the works again, and he trusted too much to the reports which he received from a Superintending Engineer, of whose efficiency he had good reason to doubt. The result has been that the opportunity of putting a stop to bad work upon the barracks was lost.

17. In not having paid more special attention to the barracks, Colonel Pollard is responsible to a considerable extent for the failure of such of them as were constructed during his tenure of office.

18. Colonel Pollard is an officer of high character and good service, and is now an Officiating Chief Engineer, 2nd Class, filling the office of Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for the Punjab Railway. As a mark of the displeasure of Government, he should be reduced for the space of one year to the 3rd Class of Chief Engineers.

19. Mr. Armstrong, who succeeded Colonel Pollard as Chief Engineer in June 1869, was not responsible for the construction of the barracks, and deserves the credit of having been the first officer who discovered the real character of the works by his inspection of them in December 1869. He should, however, receive the censure of Government for having blamed Mr. Fitzjames, when the latter officer attempted to prove the worthlessness of the work which had been executed.

20. The other officers employed in the circle do not appear to be liable to any blame in respect to the construction of the barracks, and Mr. Fitzjames should receive the approbation of Government for the determined manner in which he brought the defects to the notice of his superior officers.

21. The explanation called for from Colonel Crommelin, the Inspector General of Military Works, who inspected the barracks with Colonel Pollard in November 1867, and does not appear to have detected the unsoundness of the work, has not yet been received.

22. The general remarks of the Committee will receive the careful attention of Government. The organization of the Military Branch of the Public Works Department has already been dealt with under the directions of the late Earl of Mayo, and it may be expected that the changes which have been introduced will, as far as is possible, prevent the recurrence of failures in the construction of military buildings.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the above resolution be forwarded to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces for communication to Mr. Armstrong and Captain Faber, to the Inspector General of Military Works, to Lieutenant-Colonel Pollard, R. E., and to Mr. C. Campbell.

Also, that the resolution, with the report* of the Committee, be published in the Gazette of India, and that the removal and reduction of the officers named be notified accordingly.

Ordered also, that the above proceedings be reported to the Secretary of State for India.
